GREAT WRESTLING CARD. Young Jenkins Defeats Bill Collins Be-

A big bunch of sports on Friday evening witnessed what was conceded by the majority present to be the finest wrestling programme that was even put on by the Windham Athletic club. The principals were Bill Collins of Central Village and Younk Jenkins of Worcester, Mass, the best two out of three falls to a finish. very start. It was a great mixing contest, bringing vociferous applause from the crowd as the fastest match seen here and certainly on the level. Each man was sure out for victory and fought gamely with that end in view. Coilins obtained the first fall after the contestants had got off the mat and then back on again, on a bold that was questionable to most of the audience as it was taken in a somewhat tricky and sneaky manner before Jenkins was aware that he was caught. There was considerable evidence of dissatisfaction shown by the hooting and hissing of many. It was then announced that the man going back on the mat should be on the aggressive, that any hold that the other might obtain would so, Jenkins at first objected but like the true sportsman he proved himself to be, finally waived everything and said he would wrestle Collins anyway but he would like to understand the conditions.

A company in New Britain is to do the work and the harp will be on the market in a few weeks. Mr. Bliven already has agreements to supply two electric roads with his device, and is extremely optimistic as to the future of the business. The harp is far and away the best patent of its kind in the country, and Mr. Bliven hopes to see the manufacture of the harps grow into a large industry.

ICE ON THE WIRES Caused Trouble-Glare Walks Resulted

Ice on the wires increased the troubles of the trolley men on the Putnam division Friday, knocking the cars off schedule and bringing the regular list of ice storm troubles. The streets, too, presented the worst going of the winter, and falls of persons and horses were frequent incidents. From an artistic standpoint the effects of the storm were not to be gainsaid. Every tree was a glittering Christmas ornament and every blade of grass and line of wire had the sparkiling sheath of ice. Few wires were broken, however, as the ice coating was not very heavy, but it lastcoating was not very heavy, but it last-ed well, and when the sun went down there remained quantities of it to be meited off.

On Friday evening, Mrs. Fred S. Brown and her son, Shepard F. Brown, gave a reception at their home on Soule street in honor of Dr. R. R. Agnew and Mrs. Agnew. One hundred and forty invitations were issued and the majority of the guests availed themselves of the opportunity to meet the doctor and his bride. The receiving party stood beneath an arch of evergreen, haurel and white carnations. The color scheme in the parior was pink, green and white. A beautiful basket of pink carnations and sweet peas, a gift to the hostess from Mr. and Mrs. A A. Young, adorned one corner of the room, while pink and white carnations were conspicuous at other points. Yellow and green was the decorative scheme in the dining-room, danfodils being the prevailing flower, the gift of Miss Grace Spaulding. The reception hall was decorated in foliage; here the guests were received by Mr, and Mrs. Agnew were assisted in receiving by Mrs, Brown, Dr. W. H. Gane and Mrs Gane.
